Why study HE with us?

- Stay local and save money! By 2012, with many university fees rising to £8,500, staying local is a cheaper, more flexible option.
- Courses can be studied at family-friendly times part-time in the evening.
- There are smaller classes and there is much more staff-student time together than at university.
- Study in our newly renovated and refurbished HE centre at our Paget Road campus built specially and exclusively for HE students only. The centre contains social, learning and wireless IT facilities, together with a student support network, enrolment and registration. There are no formal classrooms with rows of people looking towards the front - instead there are innovative learning spaces and small learning groups.
- Students remaining at home will still be able to apply for the loans from 2012/13 - they can even study and have a part-time job.
- Our flexible, modular units will be a convenient choice for your study
- The college has always had high success rates with excellent progression on to university. Employers in engineering and health send their employees here to do their qualifications: they recognise and recommend these courses. The new bachelor level degrees are employer-driven vocational degrees, not academic ones.
- The college employs highly qualified staff, with Masters degrees, who have worked in the relevant industries: therefore links with industry are particularly strong.
