

NEBOSH Award in Environmental Awareness at Work

Pre-requisites

Candidates do not require any formal entry requirements.

Aim of the course

The NEBOSH Award in Environmental Awareness at Work is aimed at employees at any level, in any sector who need a basic knowledge and understanding of environmental issues. The course should also benefit employers by helping them to improve the culture within their organisation.

Who Should attend

This qualification is aimed at anyone who needs a basic understanding of environmental issues in the workplace. It provides a general awareness of environmental issues and can be taken by employees at all levels within the organisation.

Objectives of the course

The NEBOSH Award in Environmental Awareness at Work consists of one unit:

Unit EAW1: Environmental Awareness

Element 1 - Foundations of environmental awareness

- Meaning of key environmental terms
- Sustainability
- Components and certification of an environmental management system

Element 2 - Pollution, impact assessment and emergencies

- Principles and practice of risk assessments
- Air, water and land pollution
- Environmental noise
- Waste management
- Environmental emergencies

Assessment is in the form of a multiple choice assessment on the day of the course.

Duration

1 Day (9.30am-4.30pm)

Qualification

National Examination Board in Occupational Safety and Health (NEBOSH) Award in Environmental Awareness at Work.